Boulder City Hires Former Newspaper Publisher as Communications Specialist

BOULDER CITY – The city of Boulder City has hired longtime newspaper and magazine reporter, photographer and editor Tim Dewar as a part-time communications specialist to supplement the city's efforts to provide important information to the community on a timely basis.

Dewar will work with Communications Manager Lisa LaPlante, who has increased the City's profile in local media and on social media. "Tim has a great background in news coverage and understands the importance of providing information to our residents and media on a regular basis," said Al Noyola, City Manager. "His efforts complement the work of City Hall to provide transparency and openness to our community."

Dewar most recently served as publisher of the Ojai Valley News and Ojai Valley Visitor's Guide in Ojai, CA. He and his wife, Alysia, moved to the area in 2018 after the birth of their first grandchild. Alysia was born in Boulder City in 1964. Prior to their time in Ojai, the couple lived for several years in the Bullhead City/Laughlin area. Tim is an Army veteran and received his journalism training at Ft. Ben Harrison's Defense Information School in Indiana.

"We couldn't be more excited to become a part of this wonderful community," Dewar noted. "It is very similar to Ojai, but has so many special qualities we couldn't help but fall in love with it. I look forward to helping keep the community informed about everything the city is doing on their behalf."
