What's Happening around the City of Boulder City

New Mayor's Message on COVID-19

Mayor Kiernan McManus shared another video message with the community last week. He reiterated the importance of wearing face coverings and shared some of the fiscal issues being felt across the State. "People have lost jobs and had hours cut. The sales tax revenues for the City have fallen, as well as the number of people visiting Las Vegas; room tax revenue has plummeted. These falling revenues mean that the City has fewer means to respond to the issues residents are facing." The mayor also thanked the local non-profit community for their efforts, such as the Senior Center of Boulder City, Lend-a-Hand, and Emergency

Aid of Boulder City. To see the Mayor's message, go to <https://youtu.be/k9A1diHmOkg>.

COVID-19 Rental Assistance Available

The State of Nevada's new rental assistance program has funds available for renters who have been financially impacted by the pandemic. The CARES Housing Assistance Program is being administered by the Nevada Housing Division, in coordination with Clark County Social Services, the Reno Housing Authority, and the Nevada Rural Housing Authority. In Clark County, the program is being administered through a network of 14 community non-profits, including Emergency Aid of Boulder City. As of Friday, 1,963 applications had been submitted amongst the various Clark County entities. Tenants who have missed rent payments should visit housing.nv.gov to begin the application process.
