

More than 80 Participate in the “World’s Largest Swimming Lesson”

After a year off due to COVID, the World’s Largest Swimming Lesson returned to Boulder City on Thursday, June 17, bigger and better than previous years! More than 80 kids jumped into the Boulder City Municipal Pool with temperatures around 112-degrees. The event was split up by grade, and volunteers helped kids learn a variety of important swimming basics that could help save lives. Boulder City Review and Las Vegas Review Journal sent reporters out to cover the event. The BC Review will print some photos Thursday, while the Review-Journal had video Thursday night during the Seven@7 (www.reviewjournal.com/7at7/). The City put together a short video, which can be found here: <https://youtu.be/FerfAwFKILI>. In the event’s 14 years, more than 320,000 children and adults have participated in WLSL lessons, in an effort to save children from drowning. Drowning is the leading cause of unintended, injury related death for children ages one to four in the U.S. and the second leading cause of accidental death for children under 14. Research shows that formal swimming lessons can reduce the risk of drowning by 88% among children ages one to four.
